Foreign Affairs Symposium presents: The Art of Integration: Islam in Britain’s Green and Pleasant Lands

Art Exhibit on display in the Mattin Center
February 14th-20th
In 2005 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office sponsored Peter Sanders, a British convert to Islam, to take a collection of photographs depicting Muslim life in Britain. This resulted in The Art of Integration Exhibition: Islam in Britain’s Green and Pleasant Lands, which is a unique exhibition highlighting how Muslims in Britain are involved in ordinary everyday activities. These photos highlight activities undertaken by people from every other ethnic or religious group living in Britain. This exhibition salutes the ordinary and the extraordinary contributions made by Muslims in everyday life of the United Kingdom. They too play an integral role in medicine, law, politics and every other profession and field. They have contributed substantially to creating the wealth and prosperity which Muslims and non-Muslims alike enjoy in the UK today. Contact fas@jhu.edu for more information. All events are free and open to the public.

Johns Hopkins University is committed to recruiting, supporting, and fostering a diverse community of outstanding faculty, staff, and students. As such, Johns Hopkins does not discriminate on the basis of gender, marital status, pregnancy, race, color, ethnicity, national origin, age, disability, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, veteran status, or other legally protected characteristic in any student program or activity administered by the university or with regard to admission or employment. Defense Department discrimination in ROTC programs on the basis of sexual orientation conflicts with this university policy. The university continues its ROTC program, but encourages a change in the Defense Department Policy.

Ethics Statement

The Johns Hopkins community has a reputation for academic excellence, new discovery, and independent thoughts. The strength of this community lies fundamentally in the distinguished academic integrity of the university. A commitment to the principles of truth and honesty is essential to the goals of the university. Only through truth and honesty can the authorship, freedom, and collaboration that characterize and strengthen the university continue to thrive. It is the personal responsibility of all members of the Homewood campus—students, faculty, and staff—to uphold the ethical standards of the institution.

student leader profiles

Your Name: Liang Zhou

Your Hometown: Gaithersburg, MD

Your Year In School: Junior

Your Major(s): Molecular & Cellular Biology/ Anthropology

The Student Organizations You Are Involved In: Lambda Phi Epsilon Fraternity Inc., Inter-Fraternity Council, JHU Inter-Asian Council (IAC), Chinese Students Association (CSA)

Your Favorite Hangout Spot On Campus: The Beach (the Den wouldn't be considered part of campus would it?)

Your Favorite Local Restaurant: Chipotle (I like to save money)

Your Favorite Thing About Being Involved In Student Organizations: Interacting with a diverse student body through participation in a wide array of organizations has multiple benefits, but the key aspect is how you can expose your own unrealized potential in the process. Lambda has pushed me to be a headstrong and vocal leader, while my experiences at CSA and IAC have greatly structured my time management skills. I strongly believe that a successful student is one who is well-rounded, as there are many things in life that are taught outside of the academic classroom.

Speakers: Ulf Kristofferson, Department of Global Health, George Washington University/ Randall Packard, Johns Hopkins University School of Public Health

In the last ten years there has been extensive media coverage of infectious diseases including SARS, the West Nile virus, and the avian flu. Along with these outbreaks comes a resurgence of malaria and tuberculosis, defining a new public health crisis. This panel discussion will help us understand the evolving future of public health on an international scale. Contact fas@jhu.edu for more information. All events are free and open to the public.

Foreign Affairs Symposium presents: Nuclear Proliferation in Iran, Panel Discussion

8:00 p.m., Levering Hall Glass Pavilion

Speakers: Mehdi Khalaji, Washington Institute/ Gareth Porter, author Perils of Dominance:

Imbalance of Power and the Road to War in Vietnam/ Kaveh Afrasiabi, author Iran's Nuclear Program: Debating Facts Versus Fiction/ Alireza Jafarzadeh, author The Iran Threat: President Ahmadinejad and the Coming Nuclear Crisis

In the past few years, Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has become an infamous character in foreign affairs. In particular, the relationship between his presidency and the increasing prospects of a nuclear Iran has been a hot topic of discussion for liberal and conservative scholars alike. This panel discussion will examine Ahmadinejad's motivations for making Iran a nuclear power, and will aim to convey as many sides as possible about a nuclear Iran and Ahmadinejad's role in that process. It also will examine other actors in the area and the role of Ahmadinejad's himself. By examining these topics, we will be able to address possible options for dealing with Iran in the future, and the potential consequences of each scenario.
